

PSYCHOANALYTIC PSYCHOTHERAPY NOW 2019

Full day conference, The British Library, London

Things Fall Apart: identity, insecurity and fracturing societies

With much of society at odds with each other and many disillusioned with mainstream political discourse, Britain is at a crossroads. There is a growing tendency towards oppositional states of mind leading to the fracturing of relationships, alliances and groups. PPNOW 2019 brings together leading psychoanalysts, academics and journalists to explore this tendency towards polarisation and splitting within society as well as within our own psychotherapeutic community; examining why the tension between the need for the recognition of difference and autonomy and for affiliation and association feel so in conflict.

Speakers and panellists confirmed include:

- Irish journalist and political commentator, Fintan O'Toole
 - Guardian columnist and author, Gary Younge
- Jungian Analyst, former Chair of the BPC, Helen Morgan
 - BPC Chair, Susanna Abse
- Jungian Analyst, individual psychotherapist, sociologist and author, Professor Sasha Roseneil
 - Independent training analyst, author and fellow of the British Psychoanalytical Society, Dr Jonathan Sklar
- Director of the Counterpoint political science consultancy and author, Catherine Fieschi
